

The current proposal under consideration by the FCC would considerably reduce the privacy available under Indiana's privacy laws. After I signed up for the privacy protection through this law, the number of telemarketing calls have decreased dramatically. Last month, I have received just one call. It is my personal belief that Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law protects its residents while still leaving reasonable exceptions like charities and political messages. Thank you.